ORANGEWOOD POWER HOUSE DEMOLISHED

Last Night's Wind Put the Glendale Electric Line Out of Business.

One of those very unusual incidents, a wind of hurricane proportions, swept across the valley six or seven miles north of Phoenix between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening, utterly wrecking the Orangewood substation of the Phoenix-Glendale suburban electric line, putting that road out of business for the time being.

The first intimation of such an event came to Phoenix through a telephone message to Manager S. H. Mitchell of the railroad company. There were no details except that the engineer at the substation was not injured, though the manner of his escape has not been told. Mr. Mitchell left for the scene of the ruin as soon as he could in an automobile. So far as has been learned there was no other damage by the storm anywhere, though it probably worked some havoc on the nearby ranches. One of the benefits of this valley is that it never has cyclones and seldom has hurricane winds. This one occasioned no surprise in Phoenix or anywhere except where it struck with its central force, for the first time since the summer time, as the result of unusually hot days, swirling the dust around and making people swear for a few minutes. A procession of such storms usually occurs preceding a summer rain, sometimes for weeks before the precipitation follows. This was the first blow of the sort that Phoenix has had this season and the city was fortunate in only catching the fringe of it.

DISINTEGRATION OF MATTER.

One of the latest developments of the theory of the disintegration of matter is a suspicion which scientists hardly dare to voice, that there is a continual disintegration of all matter, stability being only relative and the new and perfectly inactive gases discovered in the atmosphere being among the most stable elements. It is just as natural for the atom to die as for it to be born; if we accept the latter, we cannot deny the former. The atom of matter slowly expends its energy as does a watch-spring in doing the work of keeping time. Matter, according to this theory, is concentrated energy, the dissipation of which is almost too slow for us to detect. This theory has been taken advantage of to try to explain the sun's effulgent shell, and the question arises: When the unstable matter of the sun has completely disintegrated, will it become a globe like ours, dark and relatively cold, a mass of molten iron in the complex slag of which creatures not unlike ourselves shall dwell and dig for mineral treasures, subject to the changed conditions? Has our planet itself been through that state? Such a supposition is certainly no more extravagant than many we have heard, and the security on the earth of radioactive substances and of the rare earth elements of the more useful light waves, does, in some measure, support such a theory. However, in order to show the immense periods of time which are brought into question, we might borrow the following impressive example: One cubic centimeter of hydrogen contains approximately 525 octillions of atoms; if 10,000 of these were allowed to escape every quintillion (17,000,000,000,000,000) years to empty it. Upon a similar basis of expenditure of their kinetic energy by atoms of matter, it is evident that the detection of this expenditure would be very difficult. Before returning to the ether the electric atom or electron must be studied.—Alfred Sang in Popular Science Monthly.

Just Try a Ten-Cent Box of "Cascarets"

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act On the Bowels As Pepper Acts In the Nostrils.

We all need a laxative sometimes. How often we need it depends entirely on how we live. If we exercise largely and eat the right food, we need a laxative only occasionally. But if we live indoors, and get too little laxative effect in our food, we may need to get it quite frequently in some other way.

Nobody can doubt the need for a laxative. The only question is: Which one is the best? And that isn't a question now. Cascarets are known to embody the only laxative which acts in a gentle and natural way. Castor oil merely greases the bowels. Cathartics and salts, acting as pepper acts in the nostrils, flush the bowels with fluids. But those fluids are digestive juices, and we will lack them tomorrow if we waste them today.

Cascarets alone cause the muscles of the bowels to act the same as some foods will do. Carry them with you. Take one when you need it. You will then enjoy all the good effects of keeping the bowels clean. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. The price is 10 cents per box.

MARK TWAIN ONCE SAID

"It is Spring Fever that causes the general unrest, lack of ambition and run-down condition which pervades the human system in the Spring of the year."

The sudden change from frigid to torrid weather occurs within a few weeks, especially in our northern states.

No wonder pulmonary troubles—pneumonia, spring fever, and all such ailments are almost universal.

If people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to get enough to supply the demand.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds, all derive great benefit from its use.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. A. L. Bohmer, Druggist, Center and Washington street, Phoenix, Ariz.

OVERLAND GROOM, CONSOLIDATED BRIDE

Employees of Rival Companies Unite in Marriage.

Although the Overland and Consolidated telephone companies are two distinct and unaffiliated concerns, a compact was made last evening between an employee of the company and an employee of the other that will make them, at least, partners, regardless of their firm connections. At 7:30 o'clock at the home of E. E. Avery, on South Thirteenth avenue, Clarence Perry of the Overland company was married to Miss Ruth Baker of the Consolidated company, and although it had been known for some time that a wedding was in prospect, the young people managed to have the ceremony performed without allowing knowledge of it to come to any but their most intimate friends.

Since he entered the employ of the Overland company two years ago Mr. Perry has been connected with the job wagon, and is at present foreman of the job department. Miss Baker was employed at a switch board of the Consolidated company, and was always well thought of because of the patience and courtesy she displayed in dealing with the patrons of the line.

No outsiders were present at the wedding last night, the invitation including only the immediate family and most intimate friends of the bride and groom. They will not leave for their wedding trip until later in the summer, and will start to house-keeping in a few days. Mr. Perry will continue to be foreman of the job department of the Overland, and the Consolidated company will lose one of its most faithful employees.

In view of the happiness predicted for the young couple by their friends, it is not considered likely that the Consolidated will bring suit against the Overland company for making alluring offers to its employees.

THE CHANGE IN ADVERTISING.

All the business men can recall a form of advertising that was very prevalent about ten to twenty years ago, says the Rutland, Vt., News.

The idea was to fool a reader against his will to refuse an advertisement. It was assumed that the reader was hostile to all advertising, and that the only way to get him to read it was to perpetrate a fraud. An advertisement would start in like a news article, as if it were some sensational or tragic happening. With more or less ingenuity the reader would be led on to the advice to buy Quackerjack's pills or Cheatham's corsets.

The practical result was to anger the reader at so childish a deception, and few goods were sold in that fashion.

The big dry goods merchants were the leaders in modern advertising. They were early with the discovery that the public does not have to be deceived, teased or defrauded in order to get advertising read. They found on the contrary that the public was eagerly turning to the advertising to get its questions asked, that the man who did not answer those questions was slighted and the man who did answer them got the business.

The public does not turn to advertising for wit, humor or monkey-capers. It simply asks a merchant to tell them about some of his most attractive offerings, to describe them so clearly that they can know just about what they are and what they will cost.

You no more need to work off a fraud on your readers to get them to read that kind of advertising than the editor needs to play fool tricks on them to get them to read any other good live news.

The department store men have built up their great business by recognizing that the public wants the news of their stores, and is governed in its purchases by the presentation of that news in the advertising. They found out that the store that does not advertise is as much out of the game as the newspaper that should print articles out of the encyclopedia on its first page.

AMUSEMENTS

COLISEUM

It rained last night, but that didn't make any difference at the Coliseum. The house was packed and jammed to the doors for both performances. The three attractions now being presented are without doubt the most popular seen at the Coliseum in many months. All three acts were changed last night and those who had seen the performers earlier in the week were able to enjoy themselves as much as they did before.

Pritzlow & Blanchard, the clever Europeans, sprang new jokes and sang new songs. They have one that is certainly a corker. It is called "We Are Crazy, Are You Crazy, Come and Join Our Crazy Crew." For sheer nonsense this is the limit. Mr. Pritzlow has a laughing song that brought down the house. His local jokes are of the kind that always please.

Dunkar & Weston changed, too. Of course, Mr. Weston's makeup was the same—if it hadn't been things would have been thrown at him, for that makeup has certainly made one hit in this town. In fact, it is doubtful if any single performer, appearing night after night, ever won as much applause as he. Coliseum audiences can't get enough of his facial contortions and his remarks upon things in general, his partner in particular. Mr. Dunkar did some more fancy soft-shoe dancing last evening.

Then there was George Parin, the artist, who proved that he could draw a few more things and do it so quickly as to make one's head swim. "The Dancing Paragons," Brown & Wilmot, are expected to be the feature of the bill opening Tuesday night. Here is what a Los Angeles paper said about them the other day: "And as good as they are, members of the Georgia Trio are not the headliners. This honor rightly belongs to Brown & Wilmot, two of the most original and graceful dancers in vau-deville. Known in this country and abroad as 'The Dancing Paragons,' they last night lived up to their reputation of being the most nimble on their feet of any woman and man on the vaudeville stage. They have selected the most lively tunes to dance to, including 'Dixie' and other patriotic airs. They are also able to sing with their vocal organs—as well as with their feet."

Two other good acts are on the bill with Brown & Wilmot. There are Kolb & Miller, "Those Natural Germans." They are said to be excellent German comedians and good singers. Minerva, a young woman who sings and does a "pianologue" is the third attraction.

COULDN'T STAND EXPOSURE.

The member of the legislature, of whom some graft stories had been circulated was about to build a house.

"You will want a southern exposure, I suppose," asked the architect. "No, sir," said the man. "If you can't build this house without any exposure, I'll get another architect.—Yonkers Statesman.

Dandruff Gone

Parisian Sage Drove It All Away In Two Weeks.

If people who have dandruff only knew that it is caused by germs and that these germs are slowly but surely sapping the hair root of its very life, they would hasten to destroy the germs and remove every trace of dandruff as soon as possible.

Parisian Sage (now sold all over America) is rigidly guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

It is a delightful hair dressing that prevents baldness; puts life and luster into any person's hair.

Large bottle 50 cents at A. L. Bohmer's drug store, and druggists everywhere. "My hair was falling out badly, until it became quite thin on the top of my head. After using Parisian Sage a short time it stopped the hair from falling, and also removed the dandruff, and stopped the itching, and now there is new hair growing which is about one inch long. I am 35 years old.—Mrs. M. G. Boynton, Mansfield Center, Conn.
